Ukraine Policy Preference

The war between Russia and Ukraine has been ongoing for more than three years. Which of the following policies do you believe the U.S. should take regarding this war?

- Along with our NATO allies, we should do more to support Ukraine, including supplying fighter jets, additional advanced weapons, humanitarian aid, and funding
 - We should continue the current policy of providing weapons, humanitarian aid, and peace talks while avoiding additional escalation between the U.S. and Russia or financing the war
 - We should stop providing weapons, humanitarian aid, and military intelligence until Russia and Ukraine are willing to come to the table and negotiate a peace deal
 - The U.S. should stand alongside Ukraine and directly fight Russian aggression because Russia will not stop with Ukraine
 - The U.S. should reduce or stop providing weapons and support for Ukraine because it is not our fight, and we should stay out of it altogether

Israel-Hamas Policy

The conflict between Israel and Hamas dramatically escalated in October 2023, and has been ongoing ever since. Which of the following policies do you believe the U.S. should take regarding this conflict?

- Israel has a right to defend itself, but the U.S. should encourage Israel to enact a ceasefire immediately due to the overwhelming loss of civilian lives in Gaza and then reassess how to deal with Hamas
- We should support our ally Israel and its right to defend itself through military and financial assistance, and the U.S. should not encourage a ceasefire until the threat is gone and the U.S. hostages are returned
- Israel is engaging in genocide in Gaza, and the U.S. should use its influence over Israel to force an end to the ground offensive and ensure that Palestinians are free and have their own state
